Olevia 32 inch tv won't turn on

It's difficult to tell what is being asked here. This question is ambiguous, vague, incomplete, overly broad, or rhetorical and cannot be reasonably answered in its current form. For help clarifying this question so that it can be reopened, visit the help center. So my Olevia model 237-711 tv stopped working the other day. Now mind you, I tried everything from unplugging, waiting 30 minutes, replugging it into the outlet, using different power outlets, etc. Also keep in mind that I have no knowledge in this field, but I'd like to at least crack it open before I'm going to throw it away (Not willing to spend $200-$300 on repairs either). The TV usually would have a blue led light turned on when in standby mode, but even the light won't turn on when I plug in the TV. The TV won't even show a display when I try to turn it on. Did some researching online and found out the capacitors on the power supply board go bad easily. I was willing to buy new capacitors and solder them on. So I decided to open it up and take a look. Didn't find any capacitors with bulging heads. I was wondering if its a problem with a fuse or anything else? Your input will be much appreciated. EDIT: Here's a link to the album of pics of the circuit board. Previous Next Sort by votes So, I bought an Olevia LCD TV in 2008, and it's been working normally until today, when it wouldn't register the HDMI. I attempted to change sources and then change back to HDMI, and turn off the TV, because that's fixed the issue in the past, but it didn't help. I decided to check and see if the power cable was fastened, so I moved it around with my hands and heard a sharp jolt sound coming from the port. I took the power cable out, and plugged it back in, and now it won't turn on or display any lights. I forgot to unplug my tv before messing around with the power cable, so I'm pretty sure that's the culprit. Is there any way to fix the tv? is it the power supply, or something simple? I've tried two different cables, and neither power it on. Thanks! Agreed. After seven years of good service, my Olevia 232T gave out and would not power on any longer. I took it to a shop and they told me it was $70 just for them to look at it: $35 to look if it was repairable. $35 deposit for recycling if not. (Note: If it was repairable, the $35 Recycle deposit would go towards the repair bill). For $50 more, I got a brand new HDTV (same specs, though: 32" 720p), but I'm 95% certain the repair of my old TV would have cost more. -Wolf sends You must log in or register to reply here. This happened once before, but only for a short while. Now...on going. I can turn it on and it works fine. I just cannot change the channel, volume, source, or go to menu. It will not work from the remote (checked batteries) or from the front of the TV. This morning when I first turned it on, I was able to change the channel once. Now, no more. I unplugged it for a couple of hours but still the same. Anybody have a clue? Is there a hidden reset button of any sort behind the swing arm plate? I need more than just CBS in my life! Truknutt, Thanks for that info. It does have a reset button. I just tried it, but it didn't do it. As for the model...who knows! It is a Series 2 is all I can find. I've got the cd printed out and that is what it shows. I certainly cannot find anything on the back, sides, top or bottom. Ugh! etc. I THINK maybe it is a 227. Sorry, I tried. Guess it's time to dial this number: 1.866.905.3842 for Tech Support. Thanks for the effort! I told Jim I was going to call them tomorrow and he said "this ain't gonna be pretty, you are gonna reach someone in India or Pakistan!" I'll put on my "patient panties" before I call them! LOL...lost my "patient panties" last year with our Olevia...left it in a dumpster somewhere in upstate NY. Replaced it with a Best Buy Insignia 32" LCD...has a menu you can actually understand, even if you're "electronically challenged" like me! Don't miss the Olevia one little bit!! As an old TV repairman, if your controls on the tv set work then you probably have a defective remote or a remote control panel on the TV. If the hand or Pakistanian! I'll put on my "patient panties" before I call them! LOL...lost my "patient panties" last year with our Olevia...left it in a dumpster somewhere in upstate NY. Replaced it with a universal remote, program it to work with the TV and it is fixed. If the remote control panel in the TV is bad, I would throw out the TV and then buy a new one, as it is my understanding Olevia is out of the TV making business. BTW I have an Olevia TV also and the remote is very iffy. Sometimes works great sometimes it doesn't. On the other thing, be sure the infra-red receive eye on the right front of the TV is not covered. I left it unplugged all day and turned off the reset button. I turned it on tonight just to see what happened. I was quickly able to change the source to be able to watch directv. It is working fine on dtv. I told Jim if we want to watch local stations, then we will have to watch in the bedroom. At some point, curiosity will kill the cat and I'll change it back to tuner and see what happens. SJRELLIS... I had similar probs with my Olevia TV and remote functions not working. I took the advice of a fellow HL owner and downloaded Firmware update from the Olevia website and installed it...have had good remote functions since then. May want to give that a whirl....Let us know how it turns out. Well, curiosity killed the cat...I went from satellite back to local...and it wouldn't change back. I had to again unplug and turn off reset button all day. I was able to get it back to satellite again after turning it back on. I ain't gonna do that again. Well, not right now anyway. So, how in the heck do I download a Firmware update? Maybe that is the fix I'm looking for. Go back to the Olevia Support Page. At the left you'll see "FIRMWARE UPDATES". Enter your FM number from the back of the tv. There are instructions listed dependent upon your model number. Have Fun Thanks! I'll give it a whirl right now, etc. Forgo...I can't see any #'s on back of tv. Are they behind the panel that holds the tv on the swing arm doo-dad? If so, this won't be a dj job for me. I'll have to wait on Jim. I just looked where all the connections are and I think I see the USB port. At least I can see THAT! - Discussion Starter - #1 - Apr 13, 2008 Problem just started this week, when ever I go to turn it on, it won't turn on and I gotta hit the switch and then hold down the power button a few times until it finally comes on, anyone else has this problem? No, not with my Olevia 7471. What model of Olevia LCD do you have? Better check your warranty/return policy because no HDTV should work the way you're describing. - Discussion Starter - #3 - Apr 13, 2008 Its an olevia 323v. i've had it for more than a year, so I'm pretty sure it'll cost to get it repaired - I am getting my 3rd Olevia 52 inch LCD delivered next week. My first 2 had power problems as well. Both seem to be power supply issues. I had the 252t.fhd. - Discussion Starter - #5 - Apr 13, 2008 did you have to pay to get them replaced/repaired after the first year? - Both were in the first month. Still under warranty. - Discussion Starter - #7 - Jul 23, 2008 I'm going to bump this because the problem is persisting. No one else has this issue? - answer: it's an OLEVIA!!! THAT'S WHY - Discussion Starter - #9 - Jul 24, 2008 yea, I couldn't justify paying $1000 for a 23" TV for the bedroom - My Olevia 532 just started the same routine. I hit the power button on the TV or on the remote and the blue power light blinks off, then comes back on. Normally it would blink off, the Olevia screen would show up, and then the TV would kick into the station. Anyone resolved this issue before? Thanks, Greg - something like youse guys problem has occurred 2wice on my element lcd hdtv about a week ago, 1 unplugged power cable from back of tv (unplugging wall plug would probably accomplish the same) for ~15 secs, plugged it back in, and its been ok since. good luck! - 3 years ago i purchased Syntaxbrilliant Olevia LCD HDTV from walmart it only cost me 750$ instead of 1300$. I sat on h yeah, then this year I ran into the same issue you guys are describing. First you need to take out the 30 screws from back of tv. Then find the power source/where the power cable plugs into follow the wires there will be blue wire. Once you locate and follow this wire you will see a little fuse (1.5 ohms or 1/250v ceramic) they are hard to find and I settled for glass instead of ceramic but once replaced my tv worked fine and never had the issue again....well not yet lol. If this fix doesnt work for you then I might have to say the actual power source may have burned out on your tv. Also there are alot of different components on the boards that could have burned out and without proper knowledge of the ciruity of the tv you will need a professional to fix it. I hope this works for you guys the same way it worked for me - does this fix work for the 237-s11 model too? there was a pop sound and now there is no power at all coming to the tv... thanks for your advice Summer The Olevia 432V is a full featured HDTV/monitor. The 32" screen has a 1600:1 contrast ratio and a quick 8ms response time for bright, crisp images that keep up with the action.
